PART 1

Where to sell beyond your own circle

Ways to get started.

Craft fairs, makers' markets and pop-ups

You pay for a stall for a day or a weekend and sell yourself. Great for getting known and seeing what people like.

Shared showrooms and concept stores

Spaces where several brands display their work. They usually charge rent, commission, or both.

Lingerie and independent boutiques (sale or return)

You leave your pieces in a shop, they sell them and pay you when they sell, keeping a commission. In the UK this is usually called "sale or return"; in Australia and New Zealand, "consignment".

Selling from a catalog

Your catalog sent by message to clients and resellers. See "Editable Collection Catalog".

How to find them

Search Instagram and Google for "makers market", "craft fair", "pop-up shop" and "lingerie boutique" plus your town or area, and ask other makers where they sell.

Before you go

What you need ready.

Your kit

- ☐ A finished, checked batch (see “Small-Batch Production”).
- ☐ Labels with your brand and the size on every piece.
- ☐ Retail price and shop price (after their commission) worked out.
- ☐ A catalog with photos.
- ☐ Delivery note: list of pieces, sizes, prices and date.
- ☐ A way to take payment at the fair (card reader or payment link, cash with change).

PART 3

How to approach a shop

Short and clear.

- 1 Choose shops where your pieces make sense (lingerie, designer clothing, bridal).
- 2 Send a message or go at a quiet time, not on a Saturday afternoon.
- 3 Take 3 or 4 pieces, the catalog and your prices.
- 4 Say what you do in one sentence: "I make handmade lingerie and corsets in small batches."
- 5 Ask how they work: commission, payment terms, how many pieces they take.
- 6 If they say yes, sign the agreement and leave the delivery note.

Message to introduce yourself: "Hi! I'm {name} and I make handmade lingerie and corsets in {city}. I'd love to show you my collection for your shop. Could I stop by with a few pieces this week?"

PART 4

Sale or return, step by step

So nobody is left with questions.

TOPIC	WHAT TO AGREE
Commission	What percentage of the retail price the shop keeps
Payment	How often and how you're paid for what sells
Term	How long the pieces stay
Damage or theft	Who is responsible
Price	Who sets it and whether it can change
Withdrawal	How much notice you need to give to collect

Work out your price so that, after the commission, you're left with what you need per piece. The model agreement is on the download page, in Word, ready to edit.

Model agreement

The agreement is a template to put in writing what you've discussed. It isn't legal advice: if the amounts are significant, have it checked by someone qualified.

PART 5

At the market

To sell well on stall day.

On the day

- ☐ A table with a cloth, pieces arranged by style and size.

- ☐ A mannequin or bust with your best piece.

- ☐ Prices clearly visible.

- ☐ A mirror and, if possible, somewhere to try pieces over clothes.

- ☐ Cards with your Instagram for those who don't buy today.

- ☐ Note what sold and what people asked: that's the information for your next batch.

Next step

Make a list of 5 places near you (markets, pop-ups or boutiques) and send the introduction message to the first one.
